There are so many ways to be a Girl Scout!

The flexibility of Girl Scouts is a perfect fit for families that home-school. You can join a Girl Scout troop or create your own schedule as an independent Girl Scout Juliette. Go to summer camp, participate in the annual cookie program, or attend council-sponsored activities and events. Plus, you can mix and match Girl Scout badges with the curriculum you are using!

- The content of all Girl Scout national proficiency badges have been correlated by grade level to the National Common Core Standards, 21st Century Skills Standards, Financial Literacy Education Standards, and, and curriculum for all 50 states and the District of Columbia.
- Select activities that interest you and fit your schedule. From STEM exploration to challenging yourself in the outdoors, there is something for everyone.
- Visit www.gsccc.org/events for a list of amazing opportunities that await you! Meet other families from across our council and find your community.

Benefits of Girl Scouts for Homeschoolers

- Group activities help girls develop strong social skills and make new friends.
- The Girl Scouts Leadership Experience sets her up for a lifetime of success.
- Girl Scouts programming focuses on four pillars: STEM, outdoors, life skills, and entrepreneurship. Many badges and Journeys can count as your academic work!

"I am so thankful to the Girl Scouts and having it be one more way to keep my family socially active and engaged. Girl Scouts offers boundless benefits to my homeschooling family: solid friendships, educational opportunities, the right tools to achieve their goals, the chance for girls to be heard, to have their interests peaked, and the room to be curious about them."
