

Meet Girl Scout Daisy Sapphira!

She just received her badge-in-a box activity and can't wait to work on it virtually with the other girls in her community troop. When the schools shut down, Girl Scouts stepped up to make sure girls like Sapphira could continue to learn and explore using badge kits and virtual programs. YOU can continue to make this possible for girls like Sapphira!

Thanks to our community troop outreach efforts, Sapphira and other girls who may not have been able to become Girl Scouts are now having that experience - even through pandemic challenges! Sapphira is able to join other girls in virtual programs using activity kits that are either mailed or delivered to her neighborhood.

"I liked working on the Space badge. I made a sundial and learned about shadows. And I learned the Girl Scout Promise and Law! I am excited to be a Girl Scout and want to earn more badges."

Sapphira's mom, Jessica, is excited too. She was a Girl Scout Brownie and says she's happy to introduce her daughter to an organization that embraces values her family considers important - values found in the Girl Scout Promise and Law.
