

Partnerships in Faith

Girl Scouts and religious organizations share many common goals when it comes to serving girls. We help girls embrace values to build their lives on. We help girls tap into their inner strengths – and then give them the opportunities and inspiration to take action for themselves and for the good of others. We let girls know that it's the small acts of kindness that make a difference.

Partnerships in Faith

In Girl Scouts, there is a tapestry of religious beliefs reflected in the Girl Scout membership. While we are a non-denominational Movement, the values we endorse are universal. According to a Girl Scout study, Girl Scouts: Who We Are, What We Think, girls benefit from being part of both the Girl Scouts and a religious organization. Their values and faith are strengthened as they work and earn religious awards. You can find information on the many religious awards administered by religious organizations at www.praypub.org.

There's a national Girl Scout pin that can be earned as well – My Promise, My Faith. Information on this pin and the National Girl Scout Program Portfolio can be found at www.girlscouts.org.

Consider supporting Girl Scouts during Girl Scout Week, a time of year in March when the anniversary of Girl Scouting is celebrated. The Girl Scouts of the Colonial Coast can supply you with bulletin covers or inserts for your worship program. Sponsorships, too, are another way to lend support - provide a meeting space, offer activity supplies and help recruit volunteers for a troop or group.

Partner with Girl Scouts. Grow your outreach efforts. Help girls realize their full potential! The benefits are many and can change a girl's life!
